What is TZD?
What is TZD?
Why is a coordinated approach important?

- Collaboration promotes a multidisciplinary approach
- Increased partners = increased resources and expertise
- Achieving zero cannot be done by one agency alone
Why Zero?

How many people are killed on America's roads?
What is the National TZD Strategy?

• Developed in 2013
• National vision to eliminate fatal crashes on all U.S. roadways
• Coordinated approach to reduce roadway fatalities for six emphasis areas
  • Drivers and passengers
  • Vulnerable Users
  • Vehicles
  • Infrastructure
  • EMS
  • Safety management
• Creation of a traffic safety culture
Develop a guidance document with related resources to advance the implementation of the TZD national strategy

Phase 1: Develop guidance document for implementation, develop resources for communicating and engaging with partners

Phase 2: Nationally disseminate roadmap and materials through series of webinars, workshops, and Train-the-Trainer Session
Elements Essential for Success

- Vision and goal setting
- Leadership and safety culture
- Supporting program structure
- Key partner/stakeholder engagement and communication
- Technical assistance and training
- Focused safety priorities and strategies
- Implementation and progress monitoring
This work was sponsored by the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials, in cooperation with the Federal Highway Administration, and was conducted in the National Cooperative Highway Research Program, which is administered by the Transportation Research Board of the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine.

Exercise: Identifying Potential Partners

- List the organizations/groups that you have a good working relationship with or would like to work with in the future.
- What strengths or resources could these organizations bring to a road safety plan?
- Are there organizations that aren’t listed that would bring strengths to the table?
